Cincinnati Leaf Tobacco Market. GINCINNATI, April 6.

The sales were very large, amounting to 1,513 blds; rejections, 268 hlds.

hhds; rejections, 298 hids.

The market opened quite spiritedly on Tuesday with 354 libris, on Wednesday with 585 linds, on Tuesday 464 hids, and chosed Pricary with 162 hids. We have had large sales all the year, and but one week has equaled this one.

We had an excised market on Tuesday, and Wednesday, fine red leaf, advanced to $20.50, and $19 to $20. was of frequent covarrence. On Tauraday there was a slight decline from the highest point on fine goods, $18.75 to $19.75 being the rediring figure. Other grades were higher, except common and nondescripts, which were firm at last week's prices.

The market was very buoyant, and shippers pressed their tobacco on the market eagerly, and accepted quite freely, the actual sales being 1,245 hig.

The market closed on et and steads. On Priday.

The market closed quest and steady on Friday, and buyers generally will note that prices have ruled higher this week tran any this season.

The total offerings at auction for the week just chosed, and the expired portion of the current month and year, also comparisons, were as follows: | WEEK | MONTH | TEAR | hhds. bxs. Worth's Daughter-in-Law.

[From Galignant.] A marriage is about to take place at Pau that will be recorded in future fashion annals, the bride-groom being the gentlemanly son of M. Worth. His fiancee belongs to one of the best fam-Kiechier. 58.271—John King, Jr., receiver vs. John ilies of the locality mentioned. Her bridal robe has been made with less re-Meagher et al. 58,327—May D. Campbell vs. Luken & Brinker gard to comfort than out of consideration for the train, an attirail which it is customary with maidens of gentle birth at Pau to donate to the Church.

The front only of the robe, therefore, is of satin, a concession to the fashion of the day, while the rest is of the hand-somest white lampas ever cut up for banners, and traced with silver. The make is mediæval, and the usual display of orange blossom is restrained to a chaplet of the flowers hanging on the bosom, while the smallest possible quantity or-naments the veil. It is with some reason objected that the orange blossom has been overdone.
